

Content Part "Contentpart Alias"

The content part alias is intended for the use of a content part at more places at the same time.

The only thing you need is the ID of the content part that you want to display again. You can read here, how you can find out the ID.

You can find out the ID when you enter the article center. The next chapter has been adopted via content part alias into this article.

The article center in the details

Starting from the article center you can't only get an overview of all but you can also create, copy or delete structure levels. Furthermore you can directly access content parts.

If you want to directly access content parts, click that you can find in front of
. Then you can see an overview of all used content parts.

Below the article you can now see a new level. A content part of the article is assigned to every line starting by
. After that the ID of the content part will be shown in brackets [], furthermore the type of the content part and finally with you can see in what area of the template the content will be displayed .

Field descriptions

alias ID:	Insert here the ID of the content part you want to display.
Übernahme display (block) setting of contentpart alias spaces of contentpart alias	Adoption of the spacing settings from the original content part.
titles of contentpart alias	Adoption of the titles from the original content part.

With the activation of the corresponding checkbox you can adopt the settings from the original content part, otherwise the settings from the actual content part will be used.

^ TOP

URL: http://www.phpwcms-docu.de/index.php?content_part_contentpart_alias_en